Fashionable Folk Return To Town for Gay Season

Week-End House Parties Are Now Order of Day in Social Circles, While Smart Hotels and Restaurants Begin to Resume Oldtime Brilliant Tone

New York showed more signs of a renewal of social activities last week than at any time since the summer resorts closed, and all the fashionable hotels, restaurants, clubs and theaters were filled with members of the fashionable world back to town for the season or just dropping in for a day or two on their way from a summer to a fall resort or to country places within motoring distance of New York. Every day now familiar faces, absent for weeks, may be seen at the smart restaurants and hotels at the luncheon and dinner hours, and nearly all the hotels are filled to capacity with persons dropping in to the city for a few days.

It will be only a short time—a matter of about seven weeks—before the New York season of 1920-21 is under way, and from present indications it is going to be an extremely brilliant one. New dates for receptions, dinners, theater parties and dances for the debutantes are being announced, and the unfortunate ones who have not already engaged a ballroom at one of the smart hotels are having difficulty in finding suitable dates.

Among the dates for affairs announced in the last few days is a dance at the Ritz-Carlton for Miss Annie Burr Auchincloss, to be given January 3 by her mother, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, 35 East Sixty-seventh Street. The debutante is a sister of Mrs. Edmund Witherill Nash, who was Miss Esther Auchincloss, who, on account of her mother having been in mourning when she came out, was introduced by her aunt, Mrs. Walter B. James.

The dates selected for the Junior Assembly dances, which are for the debutantes of the season, are December 3, January 7 and February 4, at the Ritz-Carlton.

There is much entertaining on Long Island just at present in connection with the numerous sporting events which are taking place. The polo at Meadow Brook has attracted the Long Island set in large numbers. The horse show at Mineola three days last week was well attended, and Friday and Saturday of this week the annual show of the Piping Rock Club will be held at Locust Valley, L. I. This always is one of the features of the fall and is well patronized by the owners of the large estates on the island, and many go out from New York and nearby sections for the exhibition. The Cravatts, Hitchcocks, Clances, H. Mackey, the Millers, the Harrises, the Paynes and the Whitneys, Mr. and Mrs. W. Bryce Wing, Mrs. Oliver W. Bird and many others will be in attendance.

Week-end house parties are the order of the day, not only on Long Island, but in Westchester County, up to the Adirondacks and other places. Clarence H. Mackay has been giving a number of dinner parties at Harbor Hill, his estate at Joliet, N. Y., for his daughter, Miss Katherine Mackay, and his mother, Mrs. John W. Mackay. Mr. Mackay will take possession of his home at 2 East Ninety-fifth Street, about November 1.

Tuxedo Park, which always is delightful at this time of the year, given because of having one of its brilliant seasons. Most of the villas are already occupied, and announcements have been made for many social affairs. Dances will be held Saturday at the clubhouse, which will be attended by many. The annual ball
